1. In November 1950, Rumania recalled Army reservists for active duty. Some reservists (including those born in 1906) were organized into labor battalions in order to work on railroad constructions, on the Danube-Black Sea Canal project and on other constructions. Others, organized and destined for military duty, were regrouped and housed in barracks. Besides the reservists, civilians were called to active duty to participate in State projects or serve as soldiers.
2. The 2 Calarasi Regiment (whose headquarters is located at Alba Iulia) departed for an unknown destination on 15 November 1950.
